Plenary Language Of Landscape

Anne Whiston Spirn, author of the award-winning The Granite Garden: Urban Nature and Human Design, argues that the language of landscape exists with its own syntax, grammar, and metaphors, and that we imperil ourselves by failing to learn to read and speak this language. To understand the meanings of landscape, our habitat, is to see the world differently and to enable ourselves to avoid profound aesthetic and environmental mistakes.

landscape looms large and requires more words: vale, wrack line, copause, dell, tillage, flatiron, moraine, gulch. I chant and my body widens. I chant and my mind opens. I chant and my soul deepens. I grow into this terrain, remembered, resurrected, or even imagined anew.

Language of Landscape — Rivera Sun

A Journey into Lake District History. At the age of five, Angus Winchester moved with his family to Cockermouth in the north of the Lake District, close to Buttermere, Loweswater and Crummock Water. So began a life-long love of a Lakeland valley and a fascination for the history which shaped it. The Language of the Landscape combines these two in a passionate and scholarly examination of the effect of place on our lives and imagination.

The Language of the Landscape — Handstand Press

Spirn’s Language of Landscape expands upon and deepens Lynch’s work, incorporating lessons on environmental assessment from her mentor Ian McHarg, the poetry of T.S. Eliot, the landscape designs of Frederick Law Olmsted, the “land as architecture” ethos of Frank Lloyd Wright (Spirn 1968, 127), the lesser known works of Australian architect Glenn Murcutt, Danish Landscape Architect C. Th. Sorenson and many others, proposing that landscape is a language, with nouns, verbs and ...

Language Landscape

Linguistic landscape is the "visibility and salience of languages on public and commercial signs in a given territory or region". Linguistic landscape has been described as being "somewhere at the junction of sociolinguistics, sociology, social psychology, geography, and media studies". It is a concept used in sociolinguistics as scholars study how languages are visually used in multilingual societies, from large metropolitan centers to Amazonia. For example, some public signs in Jerusalem are i
